GANGLAND!!

WHO WILL SURVIVE THE SLAUGHTER?

At a time where weekly reports are rife with gangs plaguing communities all over Britain, Best Kept Secret poetry collective have devised a timely theatrical showcase addressing this crises, simply entitled GANGLAND.

Gangs; Parents don't understand them; the media is stained with images of young black victims and perpetrators of this epidemic. News items and political debates seem to only guess what the problems is, and everyone seems to be at a loss to explain where this behaviour comes from, what the benefits are to young people and ultimately how can we stop them killing? It's within this climate that the Best Kept Secret present Gangland.

This groundbreaking theatre production leaves no stone unturned in exploring the many issues on our door step confronting gangs. From peer pressure, the history and influence of American gangs in Britain, to the quest for acceptance or the need for protection. The show is an absolute must for anyone concerned for the future of today's young people.

Gangland began as a 5 minute poem initially performed by Best Kept Secret member AmeN NoiR. Since then, the other members Tuggs.t.a.r, OneNess and ShakaRa have explored other areas and dramatized these issues further. The result is an unforgettable evening of high level poetry, music, singing and dance.

The show has already been performed to sell out audiences in Nottingham, and proved a hit with the young and the old. But, for the first time Gangland hits London for a two night extravaganza where perceptions and views all get challenged.

Gangland!
Who will survive the slaughter?

Best Kept Secret poetry collective will be selling a soundtrack of the play on the night, they are now available for interviews...
